Text by Fulvia Degl'Innocenti

Illustrated by Aurora Cacciapuoti

Il Castoro · May 2020 · 32 pages

As they play in their schoolyard, some kids hear a desperate wail:
RRROOAR!

Who can it be?

An alien?

A wild monster?

Maybe a giant?

No: it's Dino, a huge baby dinosaur who's lost his mom. The children do everything they can to comfort him, but then their teacher calls them in for snack time. Good thing they can play with Dino again tomorrow...

A Granny For Fridolina

Text by Anna Lott / Illustrated by Nikolai Renger

Tomorrow is Granny Day at the kindergarten, and all children take their grandmothers along. Only Fridolina can't because her granny has been dead for many years. It's just not fair! The other children talk about grannies who travel in airplanes across the sky, grannies that give them huge stuffed animals or grannies whose teeth rattle. Spontaneously Fridolina sets out to search for the perfect granny. While doing so, she does not only learn a lot about grannies but also about herself. And the best part is: Fridolina finds out that her Granny Rita can make herself so small that she fits into Fridolina's heart!

RODARI

In 2020 we celebrate the centenary of the birth of Gianni Rodari!

A hundred years have passed since the birth of Gianni Rodari, a number that leaves those who know him through his stories open-mouthed. Indeed, for decades they have been telling the story of an ever-present reality every day, lucidly describing feelings that are still true, and in their smart simplicity they let us identify ourselves in them. In short, they are modern stories embodied in a 'classic' form: universal, eternal, perfect.

Rolando from the Graveyard

by Fabio Genovesi

Rolando lives in a cemetery, along with his uncle, the guardian. All the school friends consider Rolando very odd and avoid him, so that he has just one friend named Cip, a blackbird he can communicate with.

One day the ghosts of two cousins, Marika and Mirko Gini, appear among the graves. Spiteful and dressed as sailors, they launch a challenge to Rolando: by midnight of the day after, the day of his tenth birthday, Rolando will have to climb Mount Puppet, enter the Black Darkness and find the Red Thing that is the only thing that can save them and will not make them disappear forever.

Thanks to this unexpected adventure Rolando will finally find the courage to face the world.

A fairytale atmosphere and a classic taste are combined with a fresh and original story.

KAMALA KAHN was an average middle school kid. That is, until a cloud called a Terrigen Mist swept through New Jersey and activated her superpowers! Since taking on the persona of Ms. Marvel, she has been fighting crime in Jersey City, and she has caught the eye of some well-established superheroes. After Kamala is caught by news cameras taking on a super-villain— and accidentally destroying a building along the way—she gets a letter from Captain Marvel herself! It's great that she's fighting crime, but maybe a regular school isn't the best place to learn how to do that. If she wants to continue as Ms. Marvel, she's going to need to take on some new extracurricular activities—mainly, training with other young superheroes alongside the Avengers! But if Kamala and her new friends think this new school is going to be a breeze, they've got another thing coming . . .

Show Me a Sign

by Ann Clare LeZotte

Deaf author and librarian Ann Clare LeZotte weaves a riveting Own Voices story inspired by the true history of a thriving deaf community on Martha's Vineyard in the early 19th century.

In a tight-knit deaf community in Martha's Vineyard, things are starting to change for the first time in hundreds of years. As a death shatters Mary Lambert's family, tensions over land disputes between the settled and native people are mounting. And meanwhile, a scientist bent on finding the origin of the island's prevalent deafness soon renders Mary a "specimen" in his cruel experiment. Mary Lambert has always felt safe and protected on her beloved island of Martha's Vineyard. Her great-great-grandfather was an early English settler and the first deaf islander. Now, over a hundred years later, many people there – including Mary – are deaf, and nearly everyone can communicate in sign language. Mary has never felt isolated. She is proud of her lineage. But recent events have delivered winds of change.

The Light in Hidden Places

by Sharon Cameron

One knock at the door, and Stefania has a choice to make...

It is 1943, and for four years, sixteen-year-old Stefania has been working for the Diamant family in their grocery store in Przemsyl, Poland, singing her way into their lives and hearts. She has even made a promise to one of their sons, Izio -- a betrothal they must keep secret since she is Catholic and the Diamants are Jewish.

But everything changes when the German army invades Przemsyl. The Diamants are forced into the ghetto, and Stefania is alone in an occupied city, the only one left to care for Helena, her six-year-old sister. And then comes the knock at the door. Izio's brother Max has jumped from the train headed to a death camp. Stefania and Helena make the extraordinary decision to hide Max, and eventually twelve more Jews. Then they must wait, every day, for the next knock at the door, the one that will mean death.

Saga 'The Harbour Nurse'

Book #01 - When We Ventured to Dream

by Melanie Metzenthin

A girl from a poor family emancipates herself as a nurse, fights for women's rights and a forbidden love. Hamburg in 1892: Cholera is ripping through the city on the River Elbe and has claimed thousands of victims. When her mother dies, Martha has to make sure of the family's survival. The young woman from the slums of town gets hold of a lowly training job at a hospital and works her way up to become an operating nurse. While the doctors are racing against time, Hamburg is also in the grips of political upheaval: the dockworkers are on strike, the women are fighting for the right to vote and for the rights of prostitutes. Martha joins the suffrage movement while at the same time fighting her own private fight. For she has not only discovered her love of medicine but – against hospital rules – also of a young man ...

- A great combination of commercial women's fiction with a strong historical background.

When Life gives you a Tortoise

by Heike Duken

Limes · November 2019 · 272 pages

Charly is dead and Grandmother Frieda has invited everyone to the garden of the old villa for the burial. Charly, that was the family tortoise who had been with them for more than 40 years and with whom it all began. Anyway, all those years ago, the step-grandfather Heinrich brought Charly with him as a present for the children of Frieda, the woman he wanted to marry. But the fact that Heinrich also brought secrets with him that he guarded longer than Charly would be alive was something nobody suspected in those days. And he is not the only one in this motley clan struggling with themselves and their fellow humans. So, everyone sets out to pay their last respects to Charly. It turns out to be a day on which everybody wants to bring something to a close and yet develops into a new beginning ...

- A story about fortune and misfortune, about lost and adopted sons, a grandfather who isn't one and the question of what holds a family together from within.
- A witty and warm-hearted novel about an unusual family.
- For readers of Elizabeth Strout and Mariana Leky.

This is not Economy!

by Christian Felber

Deuticke · Sept 2019 · 304 pages

The initiator of the Economy for the Common Good now turns his attention to economics. How can the meteoric rise to fame of economics be explained? What do economics mean and are they justifiable as an independent scientific discipline? Controversial topics for the business world!

“Why did nobody notice it?” Not only Queen Elizabeth wondered aloud in 2008 why the financial crisis seemed to take economists by surprise. Economic faculties are buzzing with activity: students all over the world advocate a pluralist approach to economics. They want to reveal implicit assumptions, hidden value judgements and blind spots, and embed the economy in broader contexts again.

After reviewing the breadth of criticism, Felber poses fundamental questions about the roots of this discipline and where it started to go wrong. And he makes a concrete and consistent plea for holistic economic science. The curricula at universities and business schools can be changed immediately.

The Beat of Life

Why the heart is our most important sensory organ

by Dr. Reinhard Friedl

We seem to know everything about the heart – and yet we know nothing. In all the major human cultures the heart has been seen as the biological centre for love, sympathy, joy, courage, strength and wisdom. Why is this so? There are no sensors for measuring this, which is why neuroscientists today believe that emotions originate in the brain – but just like the intestines, the heart, too, is a small brain in the body that with a zillion neurones forms its own networks and not only receives but also sends signals.

In this truly absorbing book, heart surgeon Dr. Reinhard Friedl closely examines the latest findings of neuro- and psycho-cardiology that are revealing ever more secrets about the complex link between the heart, brain and psyche. He is convinced that the perception of the heart not only as a pump but also as a source of life leads to better health.

and psychocardiology
