Maya's grandmother, Halmunee, may be losing her memory, but she hasn't lost her magic touch in the kitchen. Whether she serves salty miyeok-guk or sweet songpyeon, her stories about Korea come to life for Maya.

Then one day, something extraordinary happens: one delicious bite transports Maya and Halmunee into one of Halmunee's memories. Suddenly they're in Seoul, and Halmunee is young.

This is just the first of many secrets Maya will uncover: that she and her grandmother can travel through time. As Maya eats her way through the past, her questions multiply—until a shocking discovery transforms everything she thought she knew about family, friendship, loss, and time itself.

Brimming with heart and interspersed with seven family recipes that readers can make themselves, this is a story to savor by rising Korean American author Flora Ahn.

“Painted in vivid brushstrokes of whimsy, magic, and exhilarating adventures, A Brush With Magic will absolutely enchant readers.”—Julie Abe, author of the Eva Evergreen and Tessa Miyata series

It’s finally summer break, and Yumi is headed to Korea with her older sister, Minji for the very first time. She can’t wait to explore the city of Seoul together—but Minji has other plans. The moment they land, Minji ditches Yumi to hang out with their cousins, who are more fashionable, better at soccer, and just all around cooler than Yumi.

Feeling lost and alone, Yumi is stuck at home painting with her grandfather. But when she discovers a magical ink brush in the attic, she accidentally summons a friend straight out of the Korean fairy tales her grandfather is always telling her about. Together with this new friend and the ink brush, which has the power to bring anything Yumi paints to life, Yumi explores everything Seoul has to offer, from bustling street markets and ancient palaces to riding the subway.

But as the consequences of this newfound power come home to roost, Yumi must find the strength to embrace who she is and speak up for herself—before she loses everything and everyone she loves.

"Nothing is done!" he cried as he flew out of the attic and down the stairs. "No decorations! No music! No food!" How could he have forgotten? His mom had been more tired than he thought, but that was no excuse!

His first instinct was PITY-PAT-PIT-PAT as he raced down the stairs, heading toward the bathroom.

"You were?" he yelled as he flung open the door. "It didn't occur to—"

His voice trailed off. The bathroom was empty. A tiny candle flickered on the bathroom table, barely illuminating the cold, cavernous room.

"Hello?" he called out. The only response was the hollow sound of his own voice bouncing back.

But everyone left once they realized he was late? Or perhaps no one had remembered to come in the first place. Unlikely! Uncle Roger's never missed any of his mom's parties.

Dejected, Warren slowly walked out of the bathroom and back upstairs. He decided to go outside and see if he could climb into his mom's nest and find out for himself without anyone around so he isn't shot a new. His heart felt heavy as he slowly climbed the ladder leading to the secret hatch and peeked upon the floor.

"SURPRISE!"

Warren was shocked, he almost fell off the ladder.

All his friends were on the roof, which was decorated gaily with string lights and balloons. Friends and family held up a large flag with Warren's profile in silhouette outlined upon the fabric. Below it, "XIII" was emblazoned in gold thread. The flag snapped excitedly in the wind and flapping, he saw a loud whistle as a signal in tenor. The rooftop crowd roared rapturously, began to sing and make some noise.

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY!" Chief Beeman said, sweeping Warren into a massive bear hug.

"Oh!" Warren gasped as the air was squeezed out of him. "Are these people outside?"

Chief returned his grip and gestured to a large banquet table brimming with all of Warren's favorite foods: exotic meat pies with berries, fishy crabs, cheese pasta mixing with cream, jellied warts and fresh fruits in

Introduction

ARE VAMPIRES REAL?

Welcome! Whether you picked up this field guide out of sheer boredom or keen curiosity, let me be the first to welcome you on your journey into the unknown. If you love terrifying tales and bone-chilling legends, you're in the right place. If you hate all that stuff, that's cool, too! Stick around. This field guide has it all: Science! History! Gross facts! Not-so-gross facts! Cute bats! A really good garlic bread recipe! Seriously, don't go. Come back! Please!

- Vampires are often super rich. Okay, this one sounds like a bit of a stretch, but stick with me. Historically, the most famous fictional vampires have been based off real life people who just so happened to be rich and sometimes even royalty! That's why when you think of a classic vampire name, you tend to think of "Count" this or "Queen" that.
- Vampires need a source of food. Since vampires feed on humans, they can't exactly survive on Mars. Vampires need to be close enough to where humans live to go out and feed.
- Vampires sleep during the day. If you've been paying attention—and I sure hope you have!—you know that vampires are nocturnal and generally can't stand the sun. That means they need to stay someplace safe, where they won't be disturbed while they snooze.

So You Want to Spot a Vampire

Totally hypothetically speaking, if you met a vampire, do you think you'd be able to tell if they were a vampire? It's not like they walk around holding a sign that says hi, I'm a vampire. Not to worry! Just in case, here's a handy cheat sheet to help you figure out if there is a vampire in your area:

Let's set the scene. A new neighbor just moved into the huge spooky mansion across the street. Strange things have been happening, and you have this feeling that your neighbor is secretly a vampire! Ask yourself . . .

- Are people in your neighborhood starting to act . . . weird? And I don't mean "weird" as in a quirky personality trait—everyone's different, and that rocks. By "weird," I mean "preyed upon by a vampire." Are people acting like they've been hypnotized? Are turtlesnecks and sleepwalking suddenly the latest fashion? Has anyone said to you, "Wow, I met a vampire yesterday, and they totally sucked my blood!" If so, you might have a vampire in your area.
- Are there suddenly a lot of bats in your area? Your neighborhood might be a hotspot for bats. Three cheers for wildlife! Then again, maybe the bats came with your new vampire neighbor . . .

As the story opens, sixteen-year-old Jacob discovers a powerful new ability, and soon he's diving through history to rescue his peculiar companions from a heavily guarded fortress. Accompanying Jacob on his journey are Emma Bloom, a girl with fire at her fingertips, and Addison MacHenry, a dog with a nose for sniffing out lost children. They'll travel from modern-day London to the labyrinthine alleys of Devil's Acre, the most wretched slum in all of Victorian England. It's a place where the fate of peculiar children everywhere will be decided once and for all.

*"The challenge Riggs faces in Library of Souls is to match the remarkably high standard set by the first two books in the series, either the mind-bending bafflements of the first book or the edge-of-your-seat action of the second. Riggs succeeds, delivering a thrilling conclusion to Jacob's trilogy."—Paste magazine*

“Emotional, thoughtful, and a true testament to the power of friendship, Lycanthropy is a werewolf novel that will make you look at navigating illness, supernatural or not, in a whole new way....O’Neal breaks new ground with this book and accomplishes something truly wonderful.”—Locus Magazine

Priya worked hard to pursue her pre-medical studies at Stanford, but the fallout from undiagnosed Lyme disease sends her back to her childhood home in New Jersey during her sophomore year—and leaves her wondering if she’ll ever be able to return to the way things were.

Thankfully she has her online pen pal, Brigid, and the rest of the members of “oof ouch my bones,” a virtual support group that meets on Discord to crack jokes and vent about their own chronic illnesses.

When Brigid suddenly goes offline, Priya does something out of character: she steals the family car and drives to Pennsylvania to check on Brigid. Priya isn’t sure what to expect, but it isn’t the horrifying creature that’s shut in the basement.

With Brigid nowhere to be found, Priya begins to puzzle together an impossible but obvious truth: the creature might be a werewolf—and the werewolf might be Brigid. As Brigid’s unique condition worsens, their friendship will be deepened and challenged in unexpected ways, forcing them to reckon with their own ideas of what it means to be normal.

Kristen O’Neal is a freelance writer who has written for sites like BuzzFeed Reader, Christianity Today, Birth.Movies.Death, LitHub, and Electric Literature. She lives on the internet. You can find her at kristenoneal on Tumblr. Lycanthropy and Other Chronic Illnesses is her first novel.
