

The background is a detailed illustration of a library. Tall wooden bookshelves are filled with books of various sizes. Several cartoon characters with large, glowing yellow eyes are scattered throughout the scene. Some are perched on the shelves, while others are in the aisles. A central doorway leads to a brightly lit area at the end of the hallway, where a small figure is visible. The overall color palette is dominated by dark blues and purples, with the yellow eyes providing a stark contrast.

Dear partners from around the world, we celebrate the 175th anniversary of our publishing house this autumn with a broad list of titles and the following highlights:

- In “The Magical Library of the Buks”, a novel for children aged 10+ by bestselling author Nina George, books and imagination have disappeared from the world. Five kids discover an old and hidden library by accident and learn from the Buks, the guardians of the library, how fascinating reading is. When the Buks ask for their help to save the books, the children don’t hesitate to embark on a magical adventure.
- A library with a mind of its own is the pivot of Alexandra Flint’s YA romantasy “Silent Secrets”. Mondia, the Library of the World in Paris, where every single book helps to keep the world in balance, is threatened by enemies, who build a second library in London. Kasmir and his clan, the protectors of Mondia, need Remy, the last of the Ripari, to join their cause in order to keep the heart of Mondia alive and to secure the survival of the world.
- Last spring Sabine Bohlmann showed us with her novel “Welcome at the Grauses’ family” that being different is perfectly normal. With her new picture book, “Do you know what a Possum is”, illustrated by Emilia Dziubak, she makes us laugh about misconceptions and false assumptions.

Enjoy these great reads!

We look forward to seeing you in Frankfurt

READING EXCERPT

Nola pointed at one of the corridors that lay opposite them.

"What's that?" she called, her voice sounding panicky.

Something was approaching them. Or someone! Someone with a very powerful torch. Or rather: two.

It looked like a train rolling towards them at hip height.

"Excuse me, are we bothering you ...?" Nola squeaked.

"We were just about to go anyway," Tommy called out.

They huddled closer together and involuntarily shrank back a step. And another. And another!

"HEAR HEAR!" called a jarring voice. The light came ever closer and became ever bigger.

"We should run very far away very fast now," Tommy whispered.

"HEAR HEAR!" it boomed again.

Then the person with the lamps stepped into the middle of the domed hall with the tiny stools and tables.

Nola gasped. No! They were not lamps. They were eyes! Giant, round, lit up eyes. They belonged to a being in a cowl with a hood, raising both arms threateningly. Like the statue in the garden. But without an axe.

"THE PROPHECY IS BEING FULFILLED!" it called in a loud, jarring voice.

Then the eerie spotlight eyes were pointed at the four children and bathed them in blazing light.

Nola, Finn, Mira and Tommy were dazzled and yelped.

"They are everywhere!" Nola shouted and dodged a falling book. "They are following us!"

The eerie illumimonk yelled behind them: "Stand still, children. Stand still right now!"

Not only the children were gripped by panic, but also all the Buks, who were trying to get to safety from the yelling little people. More and more books slipped off the shelves in the process and clattered onto the floor. SPLAT!

The children screamed even louder, the Buks panicked increasingly and the thundering chaos got worse. Until ...

... the children reached the entrance hall and disappeared, still shouting, through the front door into the outdoors.

A very last book fell to the ground, then the heads of the Buks gradually emerged from the shelves.

"Who was that?" asked Attila Buk with an unusually high-pitched voice.

Romantica burped.

"Wrong question," Sherlokko Buk lectured luxuriantly. "The right question is: why were there only four?"

A fantastic plea for reading and imagination!

■ An adventurous duology filled with humour, sensitivity, wit and suspense

■ Discovering one's strengths, acceptance, friendship and solidarity

TOP TITLE

Books disappeared from everyday life a long time ago. Videos and babbling avatars are everywhere instead. Finn, Nola, Mira and Tommy have never seen a book before! But when they discover the Buks' magical library after a storm, they learn about the forgotten power of books and accept the responsibility that comes with it.

Buks are guardian spirits who preserve books that no longer exist in the outside world, but lately a seemingly incurable disease is spreading across their library. Then the Crazy Oracle, which had been silent for years, prophesies that human children will save them.

Do Finn, Nola, Mira and Tommy have the power to bring back books – and thus restore happiness, dreams, cheerfulness and creativity to the world?

The multiple award-winning international bestseller Nina George has been writing novels, reference books, essays, reports and columns since 1992. Since June 2019, Nina George has been President of the European Writers' Council.

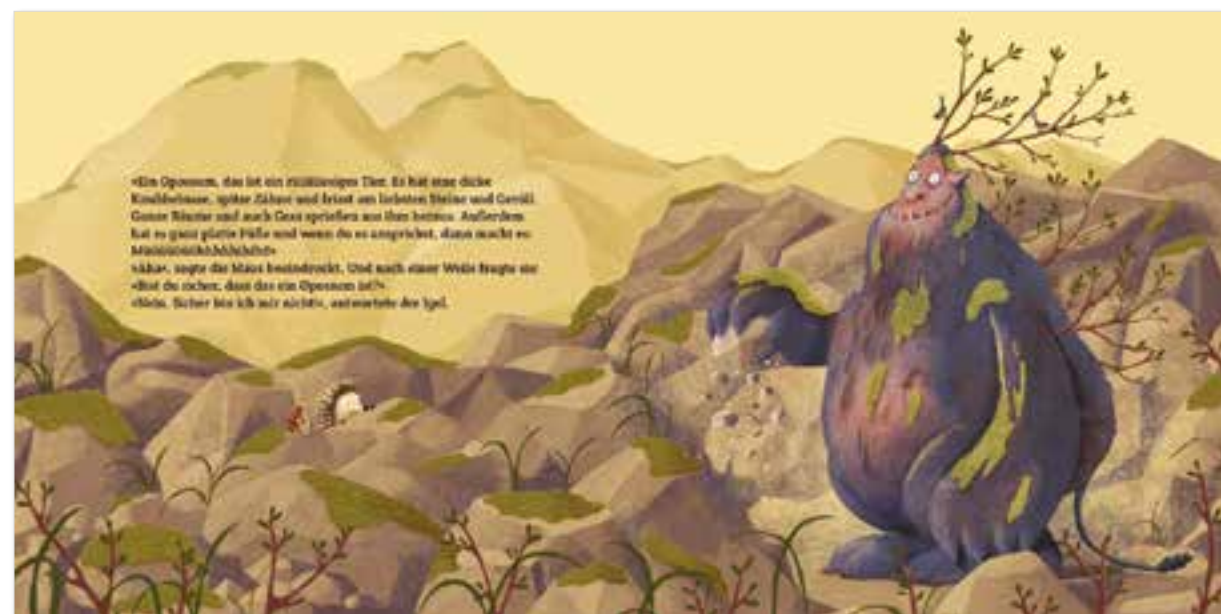

Jens J. Kramer studied ethnology and journalism in Berlin. He has written historical novels, romantic comedies, crime fiction and, together with his wife, Nina George, children's books.

A possum? You don't know what a possum is?

Prejudice can paint a cute animal as a monster - so don't believe everything you hear!

Unique forest story with charming characters

Encourages curiosity and enjoyment of nature

TOP TITLE

The mouse has received a mysterious letter. From the possum, who wants to come and visit her. But this is where the mystery begins: what the heck is a possum? The hedgehog, the duck, the boar and the beaver all have their own theories. Is it a huge animal with fuzzy fur? Or rather one with a long trunk and pink and green spots? The forest animals' fantasies get wilder and wilder. And then, finally, the possum actually turns up...

After training to be an actress, Sabine Bohlmann has been in various films and series on television. She also works as a dubbing artist and has lent her voice to actors and characters like Lisa Simpson. Since 2004 she has been writing children's books.

Emilia Dziubak, has been working as a freelance illustrator since 2010. Many of the books she has illustrated have won awards. She loves animals, so they are often her main characters.

I squinted at the hot June sun, which shone brilliantly from the sky in a ridiculously friendly manner, as if our cosmos were not approaching its demise. And that was not just a crude figure of speech but the actual damned state of affairs.

Cassandra, the last Ripari, was dead and therefore it was just a matter of weeks until the world collapsed. Maybe days. But nobody could say for sure.

I ran my hand over my chin with a sigh and shoved my hands into my jeans pockets, before glancing at Dot who was ambling along next to me. It was a mystery to me how he did not melt in the summer heat of the town, with his thick snow-white fur that made me feel hot just from looking at it. But I probably shouldn't be surprised. After all, he was not part of the conventional world and therefore not subject to customary rules such as temperatures or logic. Just as I wasn't.

Dot was a syllable hopper who had taken on the form of a big Arctic fox and had been my stalwart companion for almost seventeen years. Right in the middle of his pointed muzzle was a perfect black dot, hence the name, and nothing could escape his amber-coloured, clever eyes. Which sometimes made me feel rather uncomfortable.

"Don't look at me like that. I can't give you a highfalutin account about the chaos in my skull right now, without people thinking I've totally lost my mind," I mumbled in his direction, as we entered the Champ de Mars. Because the thing was, apart from my people and me, nobody could see Dot or the other syllable hoppers. That was another mystery. Nobody knew exactly where they came from when they suddenly appeared at the initiation of our clan, or what they enticed forth from the depths of Mondia – the world library and the centre of my home. None of us could say why their companions could hear their voice as a mental echo, while we had to ask our questions out loud.

"Why don't you tell me where exactly you're leading me instead."

The Arctic fox turned his head a little and just a moment later, his voice rushed through my thoughts. "To the place where you will find what you are looking for."

I huffed and sped up alongside Dot, in this miserable hustle and bustle of tourists and locals in front of the Eiffel Tower of all places.

Syllable hoppers were a kind of walking encyclopaedia who could provide you with advice and knowledge in almost all matters if they were not having their funny five minutes – although with Dot it was more like ten or fifteen. Their knowledge was seemingly endless, like a miniature version of the endless world library Mondia. In the past there had been considerably more of them, practically all my people had a syllable hopper at their side, but nowadays... Dot and one other were the last of their kind. Slowly but surely, this seemed to become the sad reality of my world.

"We're there, Kasimir." His warm voice brought me back to reality. Or rather, to a narrow street in front of a ... flower shop? A golden sign announced the name Bouquet de la Rose in curlicued letters and I thought I could catch the smell of fresh flowers and plants even from the other side of the street. This was definitely the last place I would have expected one of our little gadgets.

Anyone who loves books will devour this story!

■ Incredible library setting in and under Paris

■ A magical romance just waiting to break readers' hearts

■ A mystery chase through Europe: London, Rome, Edinburgh, Vienna, etc.

TOP TITLE

Hidden deep beneath the alleyways of Paris lies Mondia, the Library of the World, whose books preserve the fragile balance of the world.

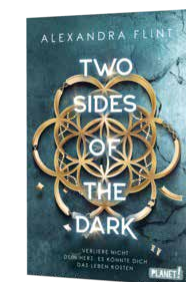

19-year-old Remy leads a normal life and prefers to spend her time in the workshop behind her sister's flower shop. – Until one day Kasimir stumbles into the shop and demands a magical key that he claims is in Remy's possession. For she is the last heir of the Ripari, a family whose bloodline has protected the library for centuries. And now it is in her hands to save Mondia from destruction. But while Remy and Kasimir face impending dangers, their enemies are already lurking in the shadows, determined to destroy the world as we know it.

Everyone has a family. And yet no two are the same. There are small and large families, multi-generational families, rainbow families, patchwork families, adoptive families, single-parent families and families with no children at all. In this book, children discover what their everyday lives are like: where and how they live, whether they go to nursery, daycare or school, how they spend their free time, what they play with, whether they argue with their siblings, cuddle with dad or are comforted by grandma. This is how diverse family can be!

King Arthur and his magic sword Excalibur, Odysseus, who travelled the seven seas, Thor and his hammer, the beautiful Loreley, who sat high up on a rock combing her golden hair, or the wise seer Cassandra, who warned her people in vain about the Trojan horse... The most famous and exciting legends in world history have been retold for this anthology in a way that is suitable for children and easy to understand. The wonderful illustrations by the successful picture book artist Anne Hofmann give the most famous heroes and heroines in world history a modern, fresh look. A treasure trove of stories for the whole family!

Habbi is joyfully jumping about in the woods stuffing his cheeks with all sorts of treasures: a snail shell, a bird's feather, a dragonfly wing. Until he suddenly crashes into a wolf, a squirrel's greatest enemy. But instead of pouncing on him, the wolf merely looks weakly at him through half-closed eyes. He seems to be badly injured. How could Habbi possibly leave him alone there? Each day he brings him food and gradually they become friends – until their friendship is put to a tough test ...

“The school isn’t going to eat you,” Milla’s father claims, but is that really true? After all, the school looks rather scary with its predator eyes and green shingles that shine like dragon skin. On the introductory day with the playschool group, all sorts of crazy things happen. And when a few children are even missing on the first day of school, Milla and her friend Ben make up their minds: they want to get to the bottom of their school’s secrets.

Things are pretty spooky at Milla and Ben’s school... Dusty cobwebs are everywhere - and why does Milla have such long canines? The music teacher can explain it: He’s rehearsing a ‘horror musical’ with the children. But there are no real vampires - or are there? Milla and Ben aren’t so sure, but they know: Friendship and garlic help against darkness ...

A huge walnut tree, all to themselves – the Nutcracker Gang is in luck! It stands in the garden of a human boy who is sitting in a wheeled chair and is currently building a raised bed for the school competition with his friends. There are bound to be a few juicy carrots for the rodents. But then someone wants to destroy Linus' project. Now it's up to the Nutcracker Gang: what are they fearless bandits for? But their plan goes horribly wrong and chaos ensues.

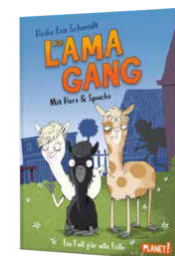

After studying psychology, Heike Eva Schmidt first worked as a journalist, before receiving a bursary at the Screenplay Workshop Munich. Since then, she has been successfully working as a freelance screenplay writer and author.

Nikolai Renger studied Visual Communication at HFG in Pforzheim/Germany. He works as a freelance illustrator for various publishing houses and agencies.

Panic in Dog City!

- With plenty of wit, action and unexpected twists and turns
- Exciting and short chapters – perfect for beginning readers
- Large font and many illustrations

Panic in Dog City! A stranger is spreading fear and terror. First he steals a poodle's diamond collar, then he threatens Bellarotti the opera dog. Super sleuth Walter Wuffman suspects that there is more to it than meets the eye. In his search for answers, he repeatedly finds himself in danger. It's a good thing that his feline assistant Chantal is there to help him. Together they go on the hunt for criminals. But can they stop the unknown one's plan?

Christian Gailus is a freelance author. He writes books and radio plays for children and adults. He has two children and no dog (unfortunately). But he has a vivid imagination - and he uses it to dream up the craziest adventures, such as those about super-sleuth Walter Wuffman.

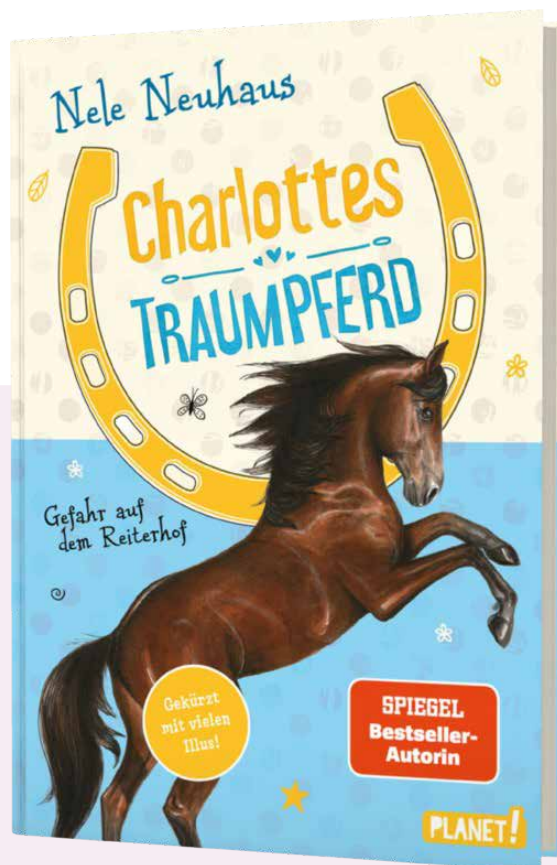

Even as a child, Daniel Steudtner knew how to embellish his parents' wallpaper with pencil and paint. He now illustrates children's and young adult books in his spare time.

Joon would have loved to use the summer to visit Mari, Kurt and Bela on the mainland. But the further he gets from Solupp, the more he feels like he's not himself. Then autumn comes, colourful and peaceful, but also unpredictable - because the storms are pulling at the little island with all their might. Is there perhaps something to the legend of the monster Skyllfur? Joon is determined to track down Skyllfur and protect Solupp. He is about to embark on a journey into the unknown, but luckily his friends are coming with him. And no matter what happens, they all have an anchor, one that will always offer them a safe haven: Solupp.

A modern-day "Billy Elliot"

- An inspiring novel about individuality and the superpower of dancing
- Friendship and solidarity fight bullying and prejudice
- A hero as talented and modest as Spiderman

Milo is twelve and a passionate ballet dancer. But like his great role model, Spiderman, he prefers to keep his talent a secret. When the new pupil Luca appears in class, he does everything he can to drag Milo's secret into the open. Actually, Milo has more important things to do: he is about to take the entrance examination for the state ballet school, and his dream of dancing professionally is within his grasp. But how can he tell his best friend Maxim that he might soon no longer be by his side? And can he escape the bully Luca?

Willow and her witch friends are amazed when they find a treasure map that Aunt Alwina has hidden for them. But what at first seems like a game soon turns serious. And not even Grimmoor, their usually talkative witch book, wants to help the friends. When a mysterious boy with a violin appears and a strange little forest spirit awakens, the girls realise that something is not quite right. Suddenly everyone seems to be after this treasure – even an ancient magician finds his way into Willow's forest. But who can Willow trust? The young witches gradually realise that this must be one of the most valuable treasures in the world. But will they be the first to solve the mystery?

New setting: Ms Honey at an orphanage

- Ms Honey shows how even a child can make a difference
- A beautiful book that conveys the small, important messages and values in life
- 330.000 copies sold of the series

The nine orphans have lost faith in all adults after being left without a caretaker for two years. They manage everything on their own, generating their own sustainable energy, recycling rubbish and going dumpster diving to reduce food waste. If everyone does just a little bit, a bit of making the world a better place turns into a huge unstoppable world-saving operation.

When Ms Honey arrives, she is impressed by their maturity, but also shocked that they missed out on childhood fun. She would like them to be carefree children again. Between floating spoons, laundry basket roller coasters, magical washing machines and feathery snowstorms, Ms Honey sets out to bring the magic of Christmas back to the orphans.

A playground and treasure trove for book lovers – that's "BookLove". Here, reading in all its facets is celebrated in a loving, creative and entertaining way. It's all about favourite books, favourite characters and favourite sentences – the main thing is love! Some see reading as a hobby, while others dream of making it their profession. Many are passionate about writing their own stories or writing about books. And the motto is always: join in! Because books, reading and literature can change lives. Reading makes you strong, inspires you and frees you. So if you don't read, it's your own fault!

Christine Knödler was born in 1967 and studied theatre sciences, German and French literature and art history in Munich and Paris. The freelance journalist, publisher's reader, and editor writes, edits and reviews for various newspapers, magazines and publishers. She has been a lecturer at the Ludwig-Maximilian University in Munich since 2009 and lives near Munich with her two children.

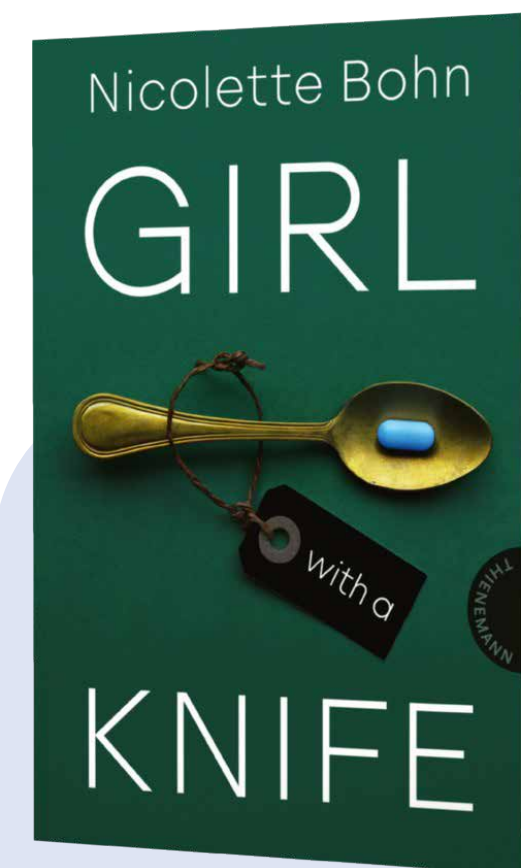

The deadly end of a toxic relationship

- Breathtaking suspense with psychological depth
- Drugs, a timeless topic
- Pressure to succeed at a new school, insecurity and a classmate too good to be true

16-year-old Celine is transferring from secondary school to sixth form college. The only problem is that her best friend Tanni is doing an apprenticeship, so Celine is on her own. She eagerly throws herself into her new classes and studying, not wanting to disappoint her mum and grandparents. But it's not so easy to deal with all the pressure. Her classmate Fiete shows her a way out: illegal raves where you can forget all the stress and problems for a night - with the help of party drugs. Even studying is much easier with stimulants. Celine falls in love with Fiete and doesn't even realise how this narcissist is manipulating her. And he keeps taking things further. Until Celine is ready to kill for him...

Being an interior designer is Kaia's dream. And it could finally come true if she could just find a graduation project. When a letter arrives, everything changes and Kaia's dream seems within reach: an old friend of the family has died and left her the house of her dreams on a lake. However, the will is subject to certain conditions: she has to live in the little Swedish house in her old home of Måneby for a year, with Pelle of all people. Pelle, the man who broke her heart three years ago. A nightmare – but also a renovation dream for her final year project. Can Kaia ultimately help not only old buildings but also old loves to shine again?

Aline Schwarz studied German and English and confused everyone with the fact that she didn't want to become a teacher. Her life has always revolved around stories. After a traineeship as both an editor and a proofreader, she was nominated for the Young Excellence Award by Börsenblatt in 2023. Aline Schwarz works as an editor for a large audiobook publisher and writes romance novels.

Lea Melcher, born in 1994, illustrates and writes in Mainz. After a Masters degree in Media Dramaturgy, an interim stay in Paris and a job in television, she went freelance. Since then, she has been working as an illustrator and author for various publishing houses.

Romantic suspense against the dazzling backdrop of Hollywood

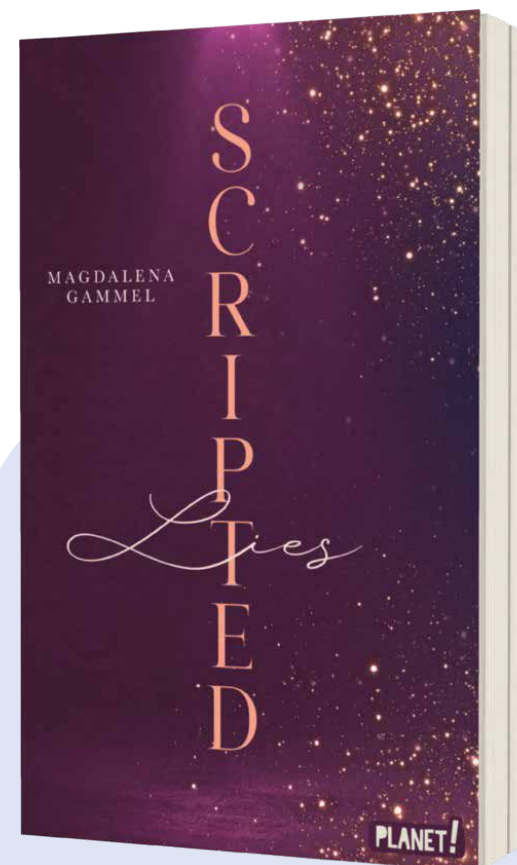

- Intrigue, family sins and murder
- A passionate love triangle
- With a 4c film city map

Lights, camera, action!

A dream comes true for Indigo when she gets the chance to act in the last film of a famous female director. It's a welcome distraction after the death of her mother, but it's strange that at the funeral two attractive strangers give her a cryptic letter that questions her mother's past. On her first day on set, she meets bad boy Avian and gentleman Julius, the new stars of the film industry. Not only are they the men from the cemetery, but they also lead her into temptation on the big screen and off. As suspicious incidents begin to pile up, Indigo realises that her fate is more closely intertwined with the families of Avian and Julius than she imagined.

Magdalena Gammel was born in Munich in 1997. Literature and film have always been her passion. A few forays into acting, however, made her realise that she would rather tell stories than act them out.

Sintha was able to put an end to the mysterious series of murders in Enebha, but the price was high: everyone now knows who she is. That's why she is forced to travel to the capital alongside the monarch, where she is to be showcased as a symbol of peace. But the monarch's apparent benevolence has an expiry date and Arez's mistrust haunts her just as much as the storm. If she does not succeed in finding the mastermind behind the dangerous intrigue she has become embroiled in, she will not only lose his love, but also her life.

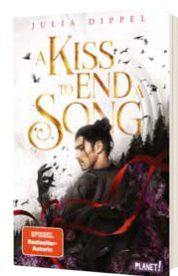

Julia Dippel has written several bestselling Romantasy series. She works as a freelance director for theatre and musical theatre in Munich. To pass the magic of storytelling on to the forthcoming generations, she has also been teaching children and young people about dramatic figures for more than ten years. Her scripts, adaptations and own works have already been performed on many occasions.

Shapeshifter Kari is Magnolia Bay's best protection racketeer, but she is also chained with invisible shackles to the ruthless Scarab clan. One day, when her father begs for his daughter's freedom, something incomprehensible happens: suddenly no one remembers him or Kari. Forgotten by her clan, she flees to the Walled City. There she meets the mysterious agent Nael and his sister Zora, a bone mage. Both are on the trail of a faceless demon responsible for the disappearance of countless people. Although she distrusts him, Kari is fascinated by the mysterious Nael who investigates the dangerous Burning Lily Syndicate. But he is more closely intertwined with the events than she realises, and getting involved with him could cost Kari more than just her life ...

Kari and her friends are on the run from the ruthless Scarab Clan. Now that the Don has joined forces with the Burning Lily Syndicate, he is more dangerous than ever as he seeks to seize power over the whole of Magnolia Bay. To stop him, Kari and her followers enter deadly territory – and seek support from one of their enemies, a former henchman of the Don. Meanwhile, Kari struggles with her own feelings. She senses that the fog has erased an important person from her memory. A person without whom her heart is left broken ...

To protect her family, young Liora agrees to become the wife of a sorcerer. When she is taken to his castle, nothing is as it seems. The domicile is populated by mythical creatures. She only sees her groom on the day of their wedding, when they are married in a dark ritual. But Jaro, the magician, is very different from what she thought. As a guardian, he watches over mythical creatures. While Jaro avoids her, Liora is plagued by visions of ghosts. In an attempt to understand them, Liora gets closer and closer to Jaro. But he is hiding something and their love is ill-fated ...

Regina Meißner discovered her love of literature early on thanks to her parents, who were keen readers, and tried her hand at writing her own stories. Regina studied to become a teacher of German and English and works as a social media manager in a media company. Besides writing, she loves reading, travelling, Disney and everything Swedish.

Greek mythology meets Bridgerton

- Urban fantasy set in Victorian London
- A unique voice: cheeky, fiery, and full of punk
- Vol. 2 in Spring 2025

It seems that Euryale is only looking for a husband in London. In truth, she is the daughter of a goddess. Styx - the river of the underworld - has become permeable and is endangering the mortal world. Now it is up to Euryale to seal the leak. It is to be her last mission. If she fulfils it, she will become a fury. Deacon of all people, a budding history professor and Euryale's biggest critic, is her only hope because he can see the threads of people's lives. Together they plunge into London society and suddenly Euryale has to ask herself whether a life in Hades is really worth it at the cost of her love...

Teresa Sporrer always harboured a big passion for books: first as a reader, later as a blogger and now she herself is a successful author. Her series about reckless rockstars touched the hearts of many readers. Apart from witty and romantic love stories, she also writes fantasy novels about antiheroes such as heinous pirates or poisonous witches.

Momo has a talent: she has a very special way of listening. She listens to the people from town, to the children, even to the animals and the wind in the trees. When Momo listens to her friend Gigi, he thinks of the most incredible stories. And Beppo the street sweeper, who is normally silent, finds the right words when he is with her and can share his wisdom: a path that seems endlessly long can only be overcome step by step.

Michael Ende (1929 - 1995). It was more by chance that he started writing for children, when he was asked to write the text for a picture book. Michael Ende let his love of telling stories take over and wrote "Jim Button and Luke the Engine Driver", which was an immediate and huge success after its publication in 1960. This was followed by other international best sellers, such as "Momo" (1973) and "The Neverending Story" in 1979. He is one of the most successful German authors, and over 35 million copies of his books have been sold in more than 40 languages. He was given many international prizes and literary awards for his works.

Simona Ceccarelli has a diploma for illustration and concept art from the Academy of Arts University in San Francisco. Since 2016 she illustrates books, games and other products for children. www.smceccarelli.com
