Sophia Como

Tingling new-adult suspense full of dark secrets under the scorching heat of Sicily

About the book

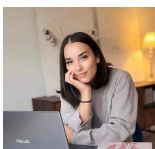

After graduating from high school, Sofia really only wants one thing: to go back to her home in Sicily and catch up on everything she has missed since she had to leave. Without further ado, the nineteen-year-old takes up residence in her aunt's rural wine hotel in the coastal town of Castellammare del Golfo, goes partying with her cousin Chiara and relaxes on the beach. Until she meets Valentin: with his broad shoulders, tattoo-covered back and perpetually cold expression in his eyes, the young motorcyclist awakens undiscovered desires in her. He is spending a semester abroad in Palermo studying oenology and works part-time in her aunt's wine hotel. What Sofia doesn't realise is that there is another reason for his stay in Castellammare. He is searching for something that was taken from him a long time ago and that he wants back. A fire ignites between them and a summer affair begins. Until fears left behind in Germany catch up with Sofia and Valentin's search leads him to discover something that could unhinge his world.

- Friends to Lovers between vines and the scorching heat of Sicily

Sophia Como was born in Flörsheim am Main in 1996 and was already an avid reader and dreamer as a child. Always travelling in worlds other than reality, she secretly scribbled stories in her notebooks during lessons. With a Sicilian father, she spent every summer with her family by the sea. If you don't find her there, you'll find the young author in her flat near Frankfurt am Main, usually with a book in one hand and a coffee in the other. She fills her novels with her own experiences, dreams and little peculiarities that she encounters in everyday life. In addition to writing, her passions include spending time with her animals, fashion and acting.

You are my Hurricane

You are My Hurricane is a passionate and humorous love story between the ambitious quarterback, Carter McCoy, and Maeve Harlow, a photography student who hides her face behind the camera. But an accident on the football field changes both their lives abruptly.

About the book

Maeve becomes an unintentional celebrity when she is knocked over by star quarterback Carter McCoy on the sidelines. Although she was actually only to photograph the college football players of the Fairview Hurricanes college, the video of her impact goes viral. When, to make matters worse she realises that her camera had been damaged in the fall, the young student has no choice but to deal with the arrogant quarterback out of all people. Because football is Carter's purpose in life and a professional career is his only goal. He wants to capitalise on the viral moment and makes Maeve an offer: In return for footage that he can send to the NFL scouts, Carter will help Maeve get a new camera, giving her the opportunity to pursue her passion. Neither of them would have expected the feelings that slowly but surely develop between them. But what Maeve doesn't know is that behind Carter's ambition lies a fate that could pull the rug out from under him at any moment.

- Florida College Setting & the most popular sport in the USA: American football

Heart Racing

At 300km/h right into the heart

About the book

Their biggest goal is to be successful in Formula 1. But how far will they go to realise this dream? When feelings come into play, they have to make a decision: Will they fight against all odds for their love or will they fulfil the expectations of those whose money rules the industry? Liam comes from a rich family of racing drivers, while Ronja has been passionately tinkering with cars since childhood. When the two of them start working for the same Formula 1 racing team, they don't get along at first. Liam was bought into the team by his father as a pay driver, while Ronja's studies have earned her a position as a racing engineer at Velocità Rossa. He thinks she's got nothing going for her, she thinks he's an arrogant snob from an elitist family. But the two soon realise that they are more successful together than alone. On the racetrack ... and possibly even in private.

- The sports romance with the trend theme Racing/Formula 1
- Female character in a world dominated by men
- Locations spread all over the world
- A love story with popular NA tropes such as Enemies to Lovers, Workplace Romance, Secret Relationship, he falls first and many more

Point of no return

She has forgotten him - he remembers every detail

About the book

When 21-year-old Quinn wakes up in a London hospital after a hit-and-run car accident, she has no memory of the past seven months. As if that wasn't enough, shortly afterwards she finds out that her best friend Emilia has been reported missing. The chaos is complete when she is approached by Emilia's ex-boyfriend, with whom she never actually had anything to do. The charming Nate claims that after Emilia's disappearance they were the only ones who believed a crime had been committed and that's why they joined forces. Quinn isn't sure whether she can trust him, but for lack of alternatives she makes a deal with him and has to join him in the glamorous world of the old English moneyed aristocracy in search of answers. A place she hates, full of lies and intrigues. The more time passes, the more feelings arise for him. Feelings that should not be there. The more the two find out, the more opaque the information becomes. Was the car accident in which she lost her memory really a coincidence? Or had she learnt something shortly before? Something that was too close to the truth...

- Exciting romantic suspense in dazzling London
- A quick-witted protagonist, a mysterious love interest and a big secret, that needs to be uncovered

Yours to keep

Sometimes home is not a place, but a person

About the book

Since Scarlett inherited a mountain of debt from her mother, she has been living in her car on the streets of Los Angeles. To keep her living situation a secret, she doesn't let anyone get close to her - the fear of rejection is too big. Until one day the aspiring writer Will turns up at the diner where she works. Will is not only battling a full-blown case of writer's block, but is also fighting for a date with her. So Scarlett offers him a deal: one of his stories from him in exchange for an answer to a personal question from her. The game brings the two of them quickly closer, and Scarlett's plan to keep everyone away from her begins to falter. Until she learns something about Will that threatens to pull the rug from under her feet ...

- A profound yet humorous love story about two people who seem to come from different worlds
- Sizzling emotions against the backdrop of L. A.

When dawn breaks

"None of this will matter when the morning dawns," he assured me and held my hand.

About the book

The novel tells the story of Cohen and Chris - two young growing closer to each other in San Francisco and are repeatedly confronted with their problems. Cohen has to face the toxic expectations of his Christian family, while Chris' life is dominated by his pathological compulsion to help others. Despite everything, the two meet again and again. But they soon realise that it is impossible for them to be happy (with each other) as long as they make their happiness dependent on the outside world. They know that their own lives can only begin when they stop always putting others first. But can they manage to let go of all these expectations when they have been with them all their lives?

Looking Down The Valley

A love story between Hollywood glamor and the dark side of LA

About the book

During a brief forced vacation, Haley and Wyatt impatiently await the start of their series. When the two are alone, Hayley acts distant and cool, but in public she does everything she can to keep the fake relationship going. But Wyatt is not the only reason why Haley is so critical of the show. Haley is slow to confide in Wyatt, fearing that he doesn't understand her. But Wyatt surprises Hayley, and once again she wonders how much of her feelings are fake and how much are real.

Forbidden Love meets Film Academy and Red Carpet

About the book

3, 2, 1 ... and... action!

Alexandra Clark is a second semester drama student at Bradwood Academy and is landing one role after another. This causes her a lot of trouble, especially with her fellow students. The student finds support only in her agent Jack Hastings, who helps her get an audition for a major series production. Both realize that this is a purely professional relationship - but why is there this growing attraction that the two are increasingly unable to deny?

My Favorite Song in Our Words (2)

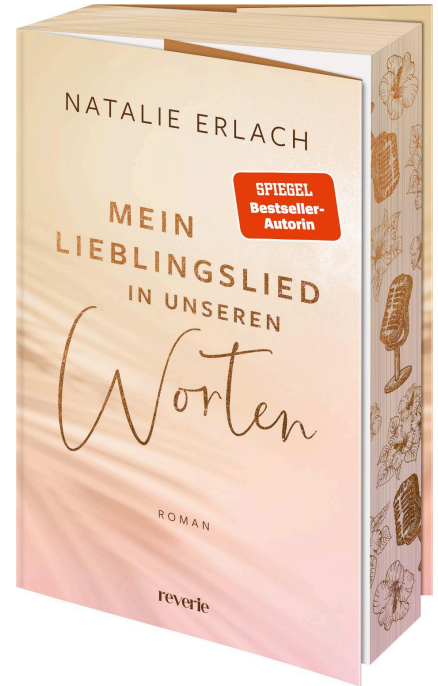

A trope as soulful as the line of a love song: she fell first but he fell harder

About the book

Only when I sang did I greet the bittersweet pain of memories like a friend.

Four years ago, the singer Florence left everything that had ever meant anything to her in the middle of the night: her band, her home, her family and, ultimately, her identity. Everything to escape him. Inspired by her best friend's turtle sanctuary, the idea of founding an environmental protection organization in Shore Mana germinates in her mind. Radio presenter Deacon, of all people, is one of the first to get wind of her secret wish and Florence doesn't know what to make of it. She doesn't like being alone and bounces from one non-committal date to the next; no one can resist her. No one, that is, except Deacon, who is just as convinced as Florence that he will never fall in love again. Nevertheless, a tender friendship develops over time that makes both of them realize what they have been missing. Their feelings soon run deeper and deeper, but Florence's past is not the only one threatening to catch up with them...

Natalie Erlach was born in 1991 during a snowstorm night in Berlin, where she lives with her small family. Before studying engineering, she spent several months in Ireland. Natalie puts all her heart and soul into creating her multi-layered characters and special feel-good settings, with inspiration lurking around every inconspicuous corner. She loves to travel the world via summer road trips, but she won't say no to a rainy day on the sofa either, as long as the pile of books is high and the coffee cup is full. Natalie doesn't have a favourite season, but romanticizes every single one, and you can see that in her books.
