Come on!

Come on!

An autofictional graphic novel for adults by Dávid Marcin

e.j. publishing

Story

Samuel wakes up from a nightmare startled and sweaty. And, slowly getting up, he immediately feels that gaze. It's there. The dog is always there. The dog he never wanted and now has to deal with. The dog he didn't want and now has to take care of. The dog that reminds him of everything. Her dog. Her stupid dog. On top of that endless work, client constantly beefing, unbearable stomach pain, forgotten friends, pissed-off neighbors. And one broken heart.

The leading Slovak comic book artist Dávid Marcin has drawn and narrated an autofictional story about a friendship that doesn't need many words. A paw is enough. And a well-thrown small ball.

Press

„Canistherapy in panels and bubbles.“

„Dávid Marcin’s graphic novel mirrors the life itself.
It is funny, it is sad and sometimes really moving.“
/Knižná revue, Martin Boszorád

„In his very powerful work, Dávid Marcin shows us not only what happens when we lose contact with loved ones, but also when we lose it with ourselves.
Help may come from a source, we would not expect it to, but we must remain sensible.“

„The drawing of the characters and also of the dog is focused on capturing emotions. Their range varies and the depiction of the emotions shows the author’s skill.“/Magazín o knihách, Ján Blažovský

About the author

Dávid Marcin (1991) is a comic artist, illustrator and teacher. He graduated from the Secondary Art School in Košice and got his Master at the Academy of Fine Arts in Bratislava (Illustration and printmaking).

He works mostly digitally, but his first solo project Pod'! was created in an analog way — with a brushpen used on large formats.

Dávid's work primarily includes comics, he participated in several comic book projects and was drawing for a children's magazine.

His most famous works include the comics Dozvedela som sa, že žiješ, PÉ-ER-DÉ and Zlatý zub (all together with Soňa Púček Balážová). He is a co-founder of so called Pomimo group of artists, which regularly publishes a short anthology of comics Pomimo, organizes comic workshops, lectures and art courses.

Dávid taught for six years at the Jozef Vydra Secondary School of Applied Arts in Bratislava, was a member of the executive committee for the Biennial of Illustration Bratislava 2023 (BIB 2023) and he is a co-organizer of the Panel comics conference and festival. Dávid currently teaches at the School of Arts and Management in Brno, where he also lives and cares for his dog called Linda.
